TELEVISED EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

I created the following 30 educational programs, introduced each program, and typically served as the panel moderator and content advisor for these programs to the Tampa Educational Cable Consortium. As illustrated below, each of these programs featured esteemed members of the professional community in the Tampa Bay area and the State of Florida. The televised conferences included participation by Governor Lawton Chiles, more than 20 judges, including the Chief Judge of the 13th Judicial Circuit (Hillsborough County) and the Chief Justice of the Florida Supreme Court, the State Attorney, the Public Defender in Hillsborough County, State Senators, the SWAT team, and many highly respected prosecutors, defense lawyers, private attorneys, law enforcement officers, and social services and juvenile justice personnel, and USF Presidents.

These classes were filmed in my course, Crime and Justice in America, before an audience of between 300 and 450 USF students and broadcast to thousands of viewers more than a dozen times on four cable networks: Jones Intercable, Paragon Cable, Cablevision Industries, and Telesat Cablevision. The first 28 programs were produced when I taught the class for a several year period (1988-1995). "Crime and Justice in America" was selected from 160 entries to receive the 1995 Southern Sunshine Video Festival Award in the Documentary category. The selection was made by judges after reviewing three of my programs produced during the 1994-1995 academic year. The remaining two were filmed when I taught this class again during the academic year 2000-2001.

Women in the Judiciary. Panel of women who were the first female judges in Hillsborough, Pinellas, and Polk Counties (Judges Susan Bucklew, Claire Lutten, and Carolyn Fulmer, respectively) discussed their career paths and important issues that they faced as a judge and as "a woman on the bench" in their respective circuits. Production date: March 8, 1990.

Women in the Judiciary Part II: The Newly Presiding Judges Speak Out. Opening remarks by USF President Frank Borkowski focused on the increasing representation of women among the judiciary in Hillsborough County. The four newly presiding female judges elected in the fall of 1990 (Diana Allen, Katherine Essrig, Florence Foster, and Claudia Isom) explained their respective roles as county and circuit court judges and discussed issues particularly pertinent to family law and juvenile justice given their respective court assignments and the material recently covered in class. Production date: April 12, 1991.

Women in the Judiciary Part III: Florida Supreme Court Justice Rosemary Barkett. My opening remarks were followed by an introduction of Justice Rosemary Barkett by the USF President Borkowski. Justice Barkett is the first woman appointed to the Florida Supreme Court and will become the Chief Justice on July 1, 1992. Justice Barkett highlighted the role and functions of the Supreme Court and then engaged in a dialogue with students and guests about privacy rights, gender bias in the criminal justice system and legal profession, and children's welfare. Production date: March 12, 1992.

Women in the Judiciary Part IV: Career Paths, Values, and Vision. President Borkowski introduced Circuit Court Judges Deborah Behnke and Susan Sexton, who preside over criminal court matters in the 13th Judicial Circuit. The judges discussed educational experiences, career paths, and pertinent issues related to the operational realities of the justice system. Production date: April 6, 1993.

Women in the Judiciary Part V: Career Paths, Values, and Vision. President Betty Castor introduced Circuit Court Judges Cynthia Holloway (Hillsborough County), Susan Schaeffer (Pinellas County), and Lynn Tepper (Pasco County) and Federal Magistrate Elizabeth Jenkins. The judges discussed career paths, gender bias, death penalty, and clemency and other pertinent issues related to the operational realities of the justice system. Production date: March 22, 1994.

Forensic Evaluation and Training

Comprehensive examinations taken at the University of Albany, State University of New York during the academic year 1978/79 in the two areas of concentration that particularly focus on psychology and crime /criminology,/ processing through the criminal justice and mental health systems, and mental health law:

Nature of Crime--Crime is viewed as a social phenomenon from a multidisciplinary perspective. Psychological and sociological theories are utilized to analyze criminological factors within individuals and society. Attention is focused also on methods to measure the extent and distribution of crime. Doctoral qualifying examination passed: Fall 1978.

Law and Social Control--The relationship of law and other social control mechanisms to social problems is critically examined. Major emphasis in this area of concentration focuses on the interface between the mental health and criminal justice systems. Criminal and civil commitments to the mental health system are systematically explored, as well as legislation in the area of defective delinquents and sexual psychopaths. Doctoral qualifying examination passed: Spring 1979.
